Diamond Doris
by Doris Payne & Zelda Lockhart

“Like people, no two diamonds are the same. They each possess characteristics that distinguish one from another. Color, Clarity, Cut, and Carat—these are the four Cs, the characteristics that determine a diamond’s value...I didn’t know anything about that when I was twenty-six years old. I just knew diamonds had that bling in the magazines that meant money and status. Something my family didn’t have but was soon to gain.”
